

Home (<http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog>)

/ Credit Score (<http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/category/tips/credit-score/>)

ADVERTISER DISCLOSURE

If You Lose a Credit Bureau Dispute, Get Set for Round 2

by Claire Davidson (<http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/author/claire/>) on March 13, 2015 | posted in Credit Score (<http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/category/tips/credit-score/>), Tips (<http://www.nerdwallet.com/blog/category/tips/>)

You can trust that we maintain strict editorial integrity (</blog/nerdwallet-editorial-guidelines/>) in our writing and assessments; however, we receive compensation when you click on links to products from our partners and get approved. Here's how we make money (</blog/how-we-make-money/>).

Like

4

Tweet

0

1

When there's an error on your credit report, you may file a dispute with the credit bureaus, but there's no guarantee you'll be able to set the record straight. Even with more thorough (<http://money.cnn.com/2015/03/09/pf/credit-reporting-agencies-settlement/>) investigations, some requests still fall through the cracks. The good news is that filing a dispute doesn't have to be your last shot at fixing your credit.

If the bureaus reject your disputes, consider these next steps:

Remain silent